NELSON MANDELA

The Struggle Series

Hand signed by Nelson Mandela

In 2000 Nelson Mandela challenged business leaders to think of ideas to raise money for his charities. The following year he was persuaded to try to raise money through selling his own artworks, and this is the first series which were drawn from photographs of his hands. In the work he tells the story of his life and that of his country and has written a poignant artist's motivation.

An edition of 500 was produced in a large format – titled “The Struggle Series”, but very few were signed. This is the rarest of his editions of art which mainly feature scenes of Robben Island.

A set of the same Struggle Series images in a smaller format was also produced and signed. We are delighted to offer a very limited quantity of these to clients. This is a unique opportunity to buy an historic signed work of art by the world's greatest statesman, now in his 95th year.

Future

Nelson Mandela

These sketches are not so much about my life as they are about my own country. I drew hands because they are powerful instruments, hands can hurt or heal, punish or uplift. They can also be bound but a quest for righteous war can never be repressed.
In time, we broke loose the shackles of injustice, we joined hands across social divides and national boundaries, between continents and over oceans and now we look to the future, knowing that even if age makes us wiser guides, it is the youth that reminds us of love, of trust, and the value of life.
