Creative Royals

Mark the Queen's Platinum Jubilee with Belgravia Gallery's royal art. They have been specialists in royal art for over 30 years. Gallery Founder, Anna Hunter, worked with HRH The Prince of Wales in producing limited edition, signed lithographs based on his watercolours, which raised over £4 million for this Charitable Foundation. Images available include the Prince's favourite places and homes such as Sandringham, Balmoral and Windsor. These have been exhibited worldwide to great acclaim. They also have a fine collection of original etchings from the 1840s by HM Queen Victoria and Prince Albert, who spent time together etching their children and dogs. Working with home and office interiors, Belgravia's Anna and Laura love nothing more than visiting clients and helping them transform their space with the addition of professionally installed and beautiful art. Works can also be viewed online or at their stunning premises in Cranleigh, Surrey. Contact for an appointment 020 7495 1010 and see belgraviagallery.com

In Session

A world's first for Canterbury this June... the entire attributed works of Marlowe will be performed at the brand new Malthouse Theatre sited in The King's School, attended by the influential playwright himself in the 1500s. Award-winning audio-producer Ray Mia's The Marlowe Sessions take the form of stripped-back, script-in-hand performances. The ground-breaking project has attracted an incredibly high calibre cast and crew drawn from stage and screen. Expect RSC stalwarts and truly thrilling performances.
